

NEVEREMBER'S SON SAVED FROM RUTHLESS XANATHAR GANG

Late on the night of the 2nd of Ches, a heinous crime rocked through the peaceful denizens of the dock-ward Renaer. Neverember son of the former open lord Dagult Neverember, was kidnapped by a ruthless gang of Xanathar thugs who dragged him down into their heinous sewer lair. But fear not denizens of waterdeep, for (party name) was there! Miss Barnabel Bradsworth obtained an exclusive interview with these unlikely heroes, and here I am to deliver the full, uncut story! These four heroes, consisting of two nobles – Ramble Margaster, who you can recognise by her long, light brown hair, azure dragon scales and blue, backwards-curved horns, as well as a human by the name of Elora Celgrey, who wears fancy noble attire, has red, long hair and wears spectacles – as well as two common folk – The Magnanimous Ryfon, often recognisable by the lute strapped to his back, his gorgeous brown hair, his fair skin and his incredible proficiency with the lute, as well as the pious Kereva, who often dons heavy armour and wears her hair up in a tight pony tail, with the symbol of the church of the sun-soul being a sure-fire way to recognise this hero. Late one evening, they were approached by a dear friend of Renaer, the famous Volothamp Geddarm, who was worried that the former had gone missing. Vowing to save Renaer, Ryfon led our heroes to the dockward to investigate, where they cunningly discovered an abandoned warehouse, used as a front for Xanathar operations. Single-handedly taking care of the thugs inside, Ryfon discovered the entrance to an insidious sewer lair, and led (party name) to take out the trash! Guided by the light of but a single torch, our brave adventurers discovered a xanatharian operation of epic proportions, and vowed to put a stop to it, once and for all! Together they fought through incalculable waves of Xanatharian thugs, led bravely by the incredible Ryfon, before they finally arrived at the central chamber where Renaer was being cruelly held. In that fateful chamber, they faced two foes – an intellect devourer (an abomination of the abyssal planes!) and one of Xanathar's top lieutenants. Grum'Shar, bravely wishing to protect his friends, Ryfon stepped forward, and engaged both these despicable creatures in single combat, however whilst he single-handedly defeated the intellect devourer, he was gravely wounded by Grum'Shar. Coming to his rescue, the rest of (group) pushed the foul sorcerer back, and eventually defeated him, saving Renaer. I reached out for comments from these heroes on this thrilling tale. The great Rython said, "I think you should remember the name Ryfon, especially any of the higher-ups and rich families, if you would like me to attend your parties, I'd be happy, my name is Ryfon", whilst the noble Ramble expressed "We are determined to fight the corruption problem in this city", echoing the sentiments of Elora who said "This city has a problem with Cultists -- Come to us if you have any issues with thieves or vagabonds". Meanwhile the pious Kereva took the humble road, stating "This is a pure moral duty anyone should have done it and we are no better than you for doing so". If you wish to contact these brave adventurers, they can be found by their soon to be opening tavern, Trollskull Manor.

written by Ms.
B. Bradsworth

written on Ches 8th, 1492

3 SIGNS THAT YOUR NEIGHBOUR IS A ZHENTARIM SPY!!!

Good day dear readers! Do you sense the mistrust in the air? The secrecy and crime that plagues our fair streets? Are you afraid that anybody could be part of the insidious Zhentarim? Well fear not, for I, Nevel Wright, am here to give you 3 surefire signs to look out for. Let's get into it.

1 Snake tattoos! It's common knowledge that the Zhentarim carry the mark of the black winged snake, but did you know they often hide these things in plain sight? Look out for anything snake related, from a hairpin to a child's toy, for that could just indicate your neighbour's TRUE affiliation.

2 Leaving the house early on the 3rd of every ten-day! I, Nevel Wright, obtained exclusive information from a trusted source, that the Zhentarim hold a weekly meeting on this day, every week. If you catch your neighbour sneaking out early in the morning of such a day, you might have just found a ZHENTARIM SPY.

3 Loud bangs and noises! It's no secret that the members of the Zhentarim must sometimes conduct "business" on their own estates, so be vigilant! Did your neighbour drop a plate, or a BODY?!

And that's all for today folks, keep your eyes peeled and remember: Wright makes right!

written by Mr.
Nevel Wright

This story sponsored by

Tax Rahan

written on Ches 8th, 1492

YOUR ADVERTISEMENT HERE

Drink
Dr. Pepper
— TRADE MARK —
KING OF BEVERAGES